

Post-Graduation Graduate School Attendance, Class of 2011

Graduate School Attendance Data on the pursuit of graduate education were obtained from the National Student Clearinghouse for students with Bachelor's degrees conferred in May and August 2011. The data were obtained in November 2011. Of the 172 degree completers, a total of 42 (24%) were attending a four-year institution in Fall 2011:

University of Saint Joseph: 22

Other Connecticut four-year institutions: 10

Non-Connecticut four-year institutions: 10

Of the 20 students not attending USJ, 12 attended private institutions and 8 attended public institutions.

Note: The National Student Clearinghouse does not provide information on students' programs of study. Furthermore, it labels institutions only as two-year or four-year with no distinction in the latter category between institutions that confer bachelor's degrees only versus graduate degrees. Thus, for schools other than USJ, students were presumed to be attending as graduate students. Those attending USJ are confirmed to be graduate students. As not all institutions participate in the National Student Clearinghouse, USJ may have additional Class of 2011 alumni enrolled in graduate programs at non-participating institutions.
